"I Have a Dream"

I am happy to join with you loday in what will go down in heaty as Five score years ago, a great American, in whose symbolic shadow we stand today, signed the Emancipation Proclamation. This momentous decree came as a great beacon light of hope to millions of Negro sizes who had been seared in the flames of withering mustice, it came as a joyous daybreak to end the long night of their captivity.

But 100 years later, the Negro still is not free. One hundred years later, the life of the Negro is still sadiy crippled by the manacies of segregation and the chains of discrimination. One hundred years are the Negro lives on a lonely island of poverty in the midst of a vast ocean of material prosperity. One hundred years later, the Negro is still languished in the corners of American society and finds himself an exile in his own land. And so we've come here today to dramatize a shameful condition

In a sense we've come to our nation's capital to cash a check. When the architects of our republic wrote the magnificent words of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence, they were signing a promissory note to which every American was to fail her. This note was a promise that all men - yes, black men as well as white men - would be teed the unalienable rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of
